MISSIONARY TRAINING

Love. Share. Invite.

Creating natural, meaningful opportunities for people to come closer to Jesus Christ

A practical discussion for members and ward leaders

What did the Ward Missionaries do to help Sister Ruth lose the guilt often associated with sharing the gospel?

How did the ward missionaries help Sister Ruth?

They helped replace guilt with confidence, connection, and choice.

Recognized her efforts

Helped her see the good she was already doing.

Showed genuine love

Focused on her as a person—not a project.

Offered choices

Presented several ways she could participate.

Respected her agency

Let her choose what felt right and realistic.

DISCUSS How can we help others feel encouraged about missionary work rather than guilty?

Why is “Love, Share, & Invite” more effective than giving a referral?

Why “Love, Share, Invite” instead of just giving a referral?

LOVE

Build genuine relationships.
Help people feel seen, valued, and cared for.

SHARE

Naturally share your faith, experiences, and what brings you joy in the gospel.

INVITE

Offer a simple next step—when it feels appropriate and without pressure.

A referral can open a door. A relationship helps someone feel comfortable walking through it.

DISCUSS • What is one natural way to practice Love, Share, Invite this week?

What are the benefits of a Ward counsel developing a menu of missionary opportunities?

Why should each ward develop its own menu of opportunities?

Every ward has different people, needs, strengths, and community connections.

Local planning builds ownership and helps members feel invested.

Ward councils can identify opportunities that fit their circumstances.

A flexible menu gives members different ways to participate.

A shared purpose—with opportunities shaped by local people and local needs.

DISCUSS • What could work especially well in our ward?

How can individual Wards put something like this into effect?

How can a ward put a missionary-opportunity menu into effect?

1. Start in ward council — Discuss the needs and strengths already present.
2. Brainstorm options — Create a short list of simple, varied opportunities.
3. Make it practical — Use clear actions members can choose from.
4. Invite participation — Let people choose what fits; avoid pressure.
5. Review and adapt — Share experiences and adjust the menu over time.

EXAMPLE OPPORTUNITIES

Welcome someone • Share a testimony • Invite a friend • Serve a neighbor • Connect someone with missionaries

A Menu of Missionary Opportunities

Everyone can participate. Start with what feels natural!

LOVE

Build Christlike relationships

- Welcome someone new and help them feel included.
- Offer service or encouragement to a neighbor.
- Build genuine friendships with those around you.

SHARE

Share what brings joy and purpose

- Share how the gospel has blessed your life.
- Talk about a meaningful Sunday experience.
- Share an uplifting scripture or personal testimony.

INVITE

Create opportunities to experience the gospel

- Invite a friend to attend church.
- Invite a neighbor to a ward activity.
- Invite someone to meet with the missionaries.

Small acts. Genuine love. Meaningful invitations.

Everyone can do something!

CLOSING REFLECTION

What will I do this week?

Choose one small, genuine action.

LOVE	Who can I acknowledge and help feel the Savior’s love?
SHARE	What experience or truth about the gospel could I share naturally?
INVITE	What simple invitation could I extend, if the moment is right?

Small acts of love can create meaningful opportunities to come closer to Christ.

Our goal is not to turn a member into a missionary with an assignment. Our goal is to create a ward where every member recognizes that they have opportunities to love, share, and invite — and feels comfortable acting on them.

That shift in culture is what makes this approach sustainable.
